The Invisible Disabilities Association

(About the CDC's implemented Fragrance Free Policy)

“The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has been following a fragrance-free policy as part of its “Indoor Environmental Quality Policy” since 2009. This clearly sets the stage for other public institutions to follow suit. The policy has been instituted in all of the CDC’s offices, affecting more than 15,000 employees nationwide.”

Sample Questions they cover: What is an example of a policy?

What steps should I take when implementing a scent-free policy in the workplace?

Are there laws in Canada that cover environmental sensitivities?

“Yes. Accommodation is required under the federal and provincial Human Rights Acts. Please contact your local human rights commission for more information. Employers should be aware that there are differences between individuals, and build these concepts into their workplace standards or policies as proactively as possible.”

UL CLEAN AIR CERTIFICATION[3]

To get UL Certified, the building must pass a VOC test.

(The question is: Do they test in bathrooms and closed rooms or small office spaces?)
